1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance and that it has not been completely solved. The author then presents a new method for solving the problem.
This method is based on the use of the variational principle. It is shown that this method is more general than the previous

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. The script is dense and fills most of the page. There are two prominent dark circular marks, possibly holes or ink blots, located near the center of the page. The text appears to be a continuous narrative or record, possibly related to a legal or administrative matter, given the formal nature of the script and the presence of a signature at the bottom right.

Handwritten signature or name at the bottom right of the page, possibly indicating the author or a witness. The signature is written in a stylized, cursive script, consistent with the rest of the document. It appears to be a personal name followed by a title or a role, though the specific details are difficult to discern due to the cursive nature of the script.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a single column across the page. The script is dense and difficult to decipher, but appears to be a form of early modern European cursive. There are several large, dark ink blotches or holes visible in the middle of the page, which may be damage to the original document or intentional markings. The paper is aged and yellowed.

The first of these is the fact that the theology of the church is not a static entity but a living and growing one.
It is a body of truth which is always in the process of being renewed and reformed. The church is not a museum of ancient beliefs but a community of people who are constantly seeking to understand the truth of God's word in their own time and place. This is why the church has always been a place of controversy and debate. It is not a place where people go to find answers to their questions but a place where they go to ask questions and seek to understand the truth of God's word.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. The script is dense and fills most of the page, with some lines showing signs of fading or wear. The handwriting is characteristic of a historical cursive style, possibly from the 17th or 18th century. The text appears to be a continuous narrative or a list of items, with some lines starting with capital letters or specific symbols. There are some dark spots and stains on the paper, particularly in the center and towards the right side, which may be due to age or handling. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged historical document.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a single column across the page. The script is dense and flowing, with many small, connected letters. The paper is aged and yellowed, with some visible staining and wear along the edges. The text appears to be a continuous narrative or record, possibly related to a legal or administrative matter, given the formal nature of the handwriting and the presence of some larger, more prominent words or phrases. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but clearly old document.

Handwritten text in a script, likely Tamil, covering the entire page. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines. There are two large circular holes visible on the left side of the page, suggesting it was once part of a bound volume. The script is dense and cursive, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect. The paper is aged and slightly discolored.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a letter or a page from a manuscript. The text is written on aged, yellowed paper and is organized into several paragraphs. The handwriting is dense and flowing, characteristic of 18th or 19th-century cursive. There are two prominent dark spots, possibly ink blots or holes, visible on the page. The text is written in a single column across the width of the page.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a letter or document, spanning the width of the page. The text is written in dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. The script is dense and fills most of the page, with some lines appearing more prominent than others. There are two distinct dark circular marks, possibly holes or ink smudges, located near the center of the page.

Handwritten text in Burmese script, likely a manuscript or letter. The text is written in a cursive style and spans the width of the page. It appears to be a single continuous entry or a series of related notes. The script is dense and fills most of the page area.

မြန်မာ့အလင်း

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a single column across approximately 10 lines. The script is dense and flowing, characteristic of early modern handwriting. There are several large, ornate initial letters, possibly 'C' and 'S', which are decorated with flourishes. The paper appears aged and slightly discolored.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a single column across approximately 10 lines. The script is dense and flowing, characteristic of early modern handwriting. There are several large, dark ink blotches or stains visible on the page, particularly in the middle section. The paper appears aged and slightly discolored.
